Mrs Smith lived in an old house. The paint on the walls was dirty, the curtains were old and dirty. The table and chairs were also old and dirty.

One day a friend gave Mrs Smith a beautiful rose geranium. He said, "This is a magic geranium. Put it on your table. It will change your house."

She bought some bright green paint and painted the table. The green table looked bright and beautiful with the rose geranium on it. Mrs Smith noticed that the green table made the chairs look older.

She bought some rose-coloured paint and painted the chairs. The chairs looked very nice with the green table and the rose geranium. But Mrs Smith noticed that the green table and rose-coloured chairs made the walls look too old.

She bought cream-coloured paint and painted the walls. The walls looked so nice with the rose-coloured chairs and green table and rose geranium.

Mrs Smith decided to paint some rose and green flowers on her cream-coloured walls. The flowers looked so nice that Mrs Smith decided to paint some green and white flowers on the rose-coloured chairs.

Then she washed the windows and bought some white curtains. She hung them on the window.

Then she made a good dinner and put the best dishes, the best knives and forks and spoons and the best red glasses on the table. She put on a new dress and called the family to dinner. They all sat down on the rose-coloured chairs and at the green table with the rose geranium on it, in the room with the cream-coloured walls and the white curtains. They ate their dinner on the best dishes with the best knives, forks and spoons.

Then Mr Smith said, "Why does our house look so nice?"

Mrs Smith looked at Mr Smith, then she looked at the rose geranium on the table, smiled and said, "We have to thank this beautiful magic rose geranium!"

The things you need for this experiment:

a bowl [bowl]

a glass of water

a few cubes of ice [kju:bz]

Do you know that only a very small part of an iceberg (its one-ninth) is visible?

So most of it (eight ninths) is under water. That is why icebergs are so dangerous for ships.

This experiment will show you why most of the iceberg is under water.

Put two or three ice cubes in a bowl. Fill a glass with water. Now pour the water into the bowl.

Try to cover the ice cubes with water. You will not be able to do it. Even if you fill the bowl, they will still float on top. Why? Because ice is lighter than water. But the larger part of each ice cube will remain below the surface of the water.

Now you know the ice characteristics. Let's play with ice !

A Sad Story

An Englishman tourist, who was staying at a hotel in Paris came to the hotel restaurant to have dinner. He couldn't speak French, but he didn't want to show it to people. He sat down at a table.

When the waiter came up to his table, the Englishman took the menu-card and pointed the first line. The waiter nodded and walked away. Very soon he returned and put a plate of mushroom soup on the table. The Englishman was very pleased with himself. He ate the soup and, when the waiter came up to the table again, pointed to the fifth line on the menu-card.

The waiter looked a little surprised, but didn't say a word. He walked away and soon returned, bringing the Englishman a plate of fish soup. The Englishman didn't want to show the waiter that he didn't know French, so he ate the fish soup.

menu-card. And the waiter brought him a package of tooth-picks!
